

‘... the history of technology emerges from a reading of [ICON ...] as among the most exciting sectors of interdisciplinary history today, deserving of a wider audience.’
– Times Higher Educational Supplement

ICON is to be praised for ‘... the extremely high quality of the articles it publishes, nearly all of which are little gems to be savoured by historians of technology. Just delightful!’
– Scopus

ICON is the biannual journal of ICOHTEC, an international organization for the study of the history of technology. ICON publishes articles on all aspects of that history, which underlies so much of human life; but it is particularly interested in international technological relations, so as to encourage cooperation between scholars across national or political boundaries.
